

Once again, you appear to be for sale to the highest bidder. The right of a viewer to make a recording for personal use was, I thought, settled in the Sony case many years ago. Aside from the issue of whether or not the various copy protection schemes actually work (other than driving up consumer cost), consumers have rights also. This seems to be continually overlooked by government employees. You work for the people, and are responsible to them, not industry moneybags who employ obscene amounts of money to influence you to accede to their desires. The public is no longer willing to go along with government owned by the few, and run by incompetent people. Hear about California? That exact same mood is pervasive throughout the country. Do not think the same will not begin elsewhere, if this nonsense continues. We are still dealing with the idiotic DRMCA or whatever it is called. How many vacations did that turkey buy?
